Mrs. Emmett Akins Entertains Octettes

A lovely evening of Wednesday afternoon was a bridge party given by Mrs. Emmett Akins at her home on North College street. Her guests were members of the Octette club and a few others.

Mrs. Akins used white American Beauty and Tallman roses in artistic profusion in the rooms where the tables were placed.

The club high-score prize, a lovely plaque, went to Mrs. C. B. Matthews; a similar prize went to Mrs. Percy Averitt for visitors.

Mrs. Jeff DeLoach received a potted begonia for low, and a potted geranium was given Mrs. J. M. Thayer for cut.

The hostess served a salad and sweet course and a beverage.

Other members of the Octette were Mrs. Grady Bland, Mrs. Bonnie Morris, Mrs. Jim Moore and Mrs. J. S. Murray. Guests other than club members present were Mrs. Fred T. Lanier, Mrs. Phil Bean, Mrs. Prince Preston and Mrs. Herman Bland.

Attractive Visitors Inspiration Of Morning Party

Mrs. John L. Trask, of St. Louis, Mo., and Miss Martha Plin, of Midville, house guests of Mrs. Henry Ellis, were complimented by their hostess on Saturday morning with a lovely bridge party.

Roses, sweetpeas and snapdragons gave beauty and variety of color to the rooms where the guests were entertained.

For high score, Mrs. Robert Donaldson was given a fustoria bon bon dish. Mrs. W. A. Bowen, with low score, received a madras linen guest towel.

After the games the hostess placed sandwich trays in the center of each table filled with a variety of sandwiches, cookies and hors d'oeuvres with which she served Russian tea.

Immediately after the party, Mrs. Walter Aldred, Jr., Mrs. Talmadge Ramsey and Miss Mary Matthews took Mrs. Ellis and her guests to Savannah where they attended a show and had dinner.

Supper-Bridge Event Of Wednesday

Prominent among the lovely social affairs of the week was the supper-bridge given by Mrs. Glen Jennings and Mrs. Fred Smith on Wednesday evening at the home of the former on Savannah avenue.

The guests were members of the Entre Nous club and their husbands. Vases and bowls of sweetpeas and roses were used about the rooms in which the guests were received.

After supper the guests played bridge. A lovely potted geranium was given for high score; a box of candy went for cut, and a carload of coca-colas was given for low score.

Those playing were Mr. and Mrs. Dean Anderson, Dr. and Mrs. Hugh F. Arundel, Mrs. W. H. Blitch, Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Thayer, Dr. and Mrs. R. L. Cone, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. A Pretty Compliment To Former Neighbors

A delightful social event of Wednesday afternoon was an informal seated tea given by Mrs. Pittman at her lovely home just south of the college campus. Her guests were former neighbors on North Main street and in that vicinity. They were entertained on the porch commanding a delightful view of the broad lawns, beautiful with the greenery of springtime. Mrs. A. J. Mooney presided at the tea service and Mrs. C. H. Remington, Mrs. J. G. Watson and Mrs. Walter Aldred, Jr., assisted the hostess in entertaining.

Adding especial charm to the occasion was a medley of old-fashioned songs rendered by Mrs. Z. S. Henderson in her inimitable manner.

Thirty-six guests were invited.

Century-Old Pistol Looks Like New

A pistol in the family for three generations, Miss Alva Wilson, daughter of J. L. Tom Wilson, has in her possession a pistol over one hundred years old. It was originally owned by Mose Wilson who was the father of Elder Jasper Wilson. The pistol is one of the old-fashioned makes, seen only in museums and movies. It was made by the National Arms company, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and carries the serial number of 23602. It was made under D. Williamson's patents of June-May 17, 1894. It has no trigger guard and holds six bullets. It is in excellent shape, having been kept well-oiled and cleaned. Miss Wilson states that she does not know any of the history connected with the pistol, other than the fact that it has been in her family for a long time. She thinks very much of it and cherishes its possession very much.

THINK OF THIS!

DAY AFTER DAY we go about our daily tasks.

Interested only in ourselves, our neighbors, our business and his business. We read our morning papers and learn what is happening in every town and city, every country and nation in the world. It only concerns us, for the moment, as news. We read of things which never occur to us as happening except to other people.

And then one day we read of a raid of the "vice squad" in some large city and cases being made against a number of girls found in a "den of iniquity." We are properly shocked while reading the story and perhaps we remember it long enough to remark over the bridge table later, "Why that can't happen in Statesboro." But don't be too sure of that!

For us to make the statement that, in Statesboro, there are a number of houses of prostitution it would be expected that we know it to be true.

We think of Statesboro as being one of the prettiest, healthiest and cleanest of small towns. Yet in several neighborhoods in the city there are as many sores which, if something is not done to clean them up, will gradually and surely sap the strength and destroy the beauty of our community.

People living in these neighborhoods find the conditions intolerable, thus lowering real estate values. Children in these neighborhoods come to know of what goes on and become exposed to dangers to morality. The health of the neighborhood, and the city becomes endangered, resulting in loss of time and money. So, like the rotten apple in the barrel, unless these cancerous spots are cut away, our entire community lies exposed to the most treacherous and insidious of all evils.

Our usual attitude of letting well enough alone will not solve this problem which affects your child, your home, your city. A militant attitude must be assumed by the entire city and a concerted voice raised demanding "rid us of this evil." It can be done!

MOTHER'S DAY.

SUNDAY IS MOTHER'S DAY. Does this mean anything to you? Certainly it does.

We can think of no holiday more in keeping with the American tradition than Mother's Day. It has ever been "American" to honor the great heroes of our land—is it not fitting, then, that we should set aside a day in honor of our greatest heroine—your Mother and our Mother?

But Mother's Day takes on added importance when we stop to think of how PERSONAL this holiday is. All American mothers, of course, we honor; to our own Mother we pay special tribute. And what can we compare with that inner joy that comes with giving kind words of deep appreciation, or a little gift of the words we love. Remember your Mother. She is the best friend you have.

MERCHANTS' HALF-HOLIDAY.

Last Wednesday afternoon marked the beginning of the Statesboro merchants observing the closing of their stores during the summer, until the opening of the Tobacco Market.

At a meeting about two months ago the merchants in Statesboro agreed to close their stores during this time. Drug stores, garages, filling stations and automobile dealers excluded. They, out of necessity, have to stay open.

At this meeting there was a spirit of civic cooperation. A majority of our merchants were present. All agreed that Wednesday was the best day to close up their stores and relax for a half-day—go fishing, play, and forget business.

After the meeting, someone said that if so-and-so did not close they would stay open too. Now, the point we want to bring out is this: We believe that if a majority of our civic-minded merchants agree to close up their shops, then all the other merchants in similar businesses should do the same thing. It is true that perhaps the ones that did not close might take in a few dollars during the afternoon; but, after all, it is worth that much? Think of the fun and the pleasure your competitor is having—relaxing at home, or catching a five-pound fish.

Now, it is true that a merchant that owns his own business has a perfect right to run and operate his business like he wishes, but after all we all live in the same town and we should all be friends. We must get along with each other, pull together for a

The Man of the Week

In every community there is one man whose name is the first one to be mentioned when a move for a community project is made. In Bulloch county, where a chairman is needed, or where a promoter is needed, in Bulloch county that man is Alfred Dorman, known to all as "Bull." Mr. Dorman, our Man of the Week, has done more with the least fanfare than any man we know. True, he takes a great deal, which is why he is called "Bull," but underneath you find a man who will listen to your problems and anticipates your needs.

To enumerate the good "Bull" Dorman has done in Statesboro and Bulloch county would be to give a review of practically every forward step made in this county. We present him here as our "Man of the Week."

Alfred Dorman was born Feb. 28, 1891, on a farm in Sumter county, Georgia. His family later moved to Cordele, Ga., where he attended school. Mr. Dorman did not finish high school. His higher education came through the school of experience. At an early age he earned his first money working as a messenger boy for the Western Union in Cordele. For several years he worked as a clerk in the offices of the A. B. & C. railroad, and later with the Southeastern Deming hardware in Cordele. Mr. Dorman went into the wholesale grocery business for the first time in 1917. He was employed as a salesman for Prigden Bros. Co. in Cordele. He came to Statesboro in August, 1919, and went into the wholesale produce business. The first District are letting it be known that they refuse to use "canned" free publicity for any candidate using other advertising media to the exclusion of newspapers. Election after election the candidates for state offices have flooded the weekly press with "write ups" of what wonderful officers they would make if elected and expect it to be published free of charge, then spend their money for other advertising media. All this will be remedied, the Press Association believes.

Talk . . . talk . . . talk. There can be more talk about what is wrong with us . . . plans can be made for better Georgias, better Bulloch counties, better this or better that . . . but we must learn a lesson from the banks. When our notes come due we can talk and talk and talk but if we don't do something about it, then all the talk we have made doesn't mean a thing to the man across the desk at the bank. See what we mean? Do something—then talk.

Thomasville Enterprise: All good people belong in bed by nine-thirty and should be up by six-thirty.

Americus Recorder: It is unfortunate that there is no way to utilize left-over advice.

TWO MORE Bulloch Countians have been recognized as leaders in their field. Dr. Allen Buncie, of Atlanta, son of Mrs. J. A. Buncie, Sr., has been named president-elect of the Medical Association of Georgia. He has been secretary-treasurer of that organization for fifteen years.

Dr. Julian K. Quattlebaum, also a son of Bulloch County and president of the Georgia Medical Society, has been named first vice-president of the Medical Association of Georgia.

Everywhere one goes in the state one will find our native sons and daughters in positions of distinction, and they are a credit to their home county. We congratulate them.

AN UNUSUAL distinction has been conferred upon Alfred Dorman, of Statesboro.

Mr. Dorman, as vice-president of the United States Wholesale Grocers' Association, presided at the opening session of the annual convention of that organization held in Savannah May 7-9. The meeting brought together more than 2,000 of the leading independent wholesale grocers in the United States. The program included Hon. Wright Patman, Congressman, First District of Texas, and other well-known national figures.

Statesboro is to be congratulated that one of her leading business men holds a high position in one of the nation's leading organizations.

Every one knows him as "Bull." He is actively associated with the financial life of Statesboro, being a director in the Sea Island bank since 1928. He played a major part in the reorganization of the bank in 1932. He is an active church and Sunday school worker. He is a member of the Methodist church. He was president of his Sunday school for three years. He is a member of the Rotary club and Chamber of Commerce.

paper men. Come down and meet them—you'll like 'em. They are from Summerville, Ga., and are heirs to the newspaper up there.

That election for officers in the Junior Chamber of Commerce is certainly going to be good. The Jaycees hold their first election next Thursday. Two fine young men are in the running for president, and either one would be a credit to the club. They are Talmadge Ramsey and Hobson Dubose.

I thought I was going to see a good fight at the college the other night. It seems that the college boys don't like the attitude of a former student. This student came out to the campus one night in a new Plymouth and the boys really let him have it—rather, the Plymouth. They let the air out of all the tires. He was so mad he thought he could take on the whole college group, but on the second thought he decided he had better take just one at the time. Nothing ever happened, but the pot was boiling.

You can tell that I am about to run out of something to write, can't you? This writing reminds me of my high school days when those of us who wrote to give us some money to write to know, she would give you a subject and say, "Write me a 500-word theme." All I could ever do was sit and wonder what I could write about my grades in English were never very good, anyway. Now I don't even have a subject given, and still don't know what to write about.

I can tell you a person that I think is very nice . . . Mrs. Day Gay who works in "Pie" Womack's office. Come to think of it, all the ladies working in our county courthouses are very nice and courteous.

There is a difference between punishment and offering rewards. "Georgia must develop a better system of classification and segregation, so that the reward of good behavior, character development and dependability will be more certain."

"There must be, in short, hope."

Planning A Better Georgia

Editor's Note: This final installment of a series of three articles, concerning Georgia's penal system, offers constructive suggestions presented to the Citizens' Fact Finding Movement of Georgia. Millions in money and thousands in lives can be saved if the system is altered to become workable and humane.

"Development of a satisfactory prison system is a long, hard job, giving the best of support and facilities. Yet progress toward the goal is entirely possible, even with Georgia's present provisions for the work."

This is a conclusion reached in a study of the state's prison system prepared by a group of consultants, headed by Tarleton Collier, for the Citizens' Fact Finding Movement of Georgia, representing seventeen organizations and 250,000 persons.

"There must be first of all," says the report, "a consolidation of these provisions and these scattered resources."

"Under consolidation and centralization of control and policy, a better job could be done with less money than is now spent in the chaotic and wasteful system of state-county-highway department maintenance."

"Our paucity and uncertainty of state resources breed waste, because they force us to resort to our present nondescript and formless method as the only way out."

"Illinois and Pennsylvania, with far larger populations and resources than Georgia, but with centralized prison administration, spend less money for their penal systems than the amount of Georgia's 'highway contracts' for hire of prisoners in the years 1937 and 1938."

"Then there must be a change in approach, under the idea that it is as much the prison's job to teach a man the rules of society as to punish him for his error, if not more."

"Our ideal prison system must be based on a perception of individuality as the most precious and powerful thing in life—and on a desire and ability to protect it and develop it."

"The men in prison are people. They are the stuff of citizens. They are our minority, the humblest of minorities and granted the fewest rights—but we should remember that certain of these rights are human and inalienable, as are those of any other minority."

"The ideal prison system is that in which the prisoners themselves have a voice in its regulation, in the development of its program."

"The ideal penal system must take into account that men are different, with different needs of mind and body, and that they are not one and all work animals of a common type. This system must seek, with the proper calculations, perceptions and facilities, to make a plan of treatment for each."

"This presupposes a competent professional staff, both for study and administration. We must work to build on the idea that there should be an eye to the welfare of existence outside the walls, a betterment of that existence. No system can profess to be a good one that does not have as its main purpose the better fitting of the man in prison for free life after he emerges."

"There is a difference between punishment and offering rewards. Georgia must develop a better system of classification and segregation, so that the reward of good behavior, character development and dependability will be more certain."

"There must be, in short, hope."

SINCLAIR ANNOUNCES NEW KIND OF GASOLINE

W. L. Waller, agent for Sinclair, announces this week a new gasoline with double range anti-knock qualities.

"Every motorist knows," Mr. Waller states, "that there are just two important ranges where you need knockless power. The first range is from ten to forty-five miles per hour for ordinary pick-up in traffic. The second range is at forty-five miles per hour and higher where you need extra high anti-knock for speed on the open highway or for passing cars in traffic. Some gasolines may give high anti-knock in one range but not in the other. But now Sinclair has developed a gasoline that gives high anti-knock in both the low-speed and high-speed ranges of driving."

Mr. Waller states that all his dealers in the county handle this new gasoline.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Cumming had as their guests last week their son, Britt Cumming, Mrs. Cumming and their daughter, Carita; Britt, Jr., and Marceline, of Savannah.

Mrs. Carey Martin and small daughters, Jean and Sandra, of Metter, spent one day last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Bland.

Mrs. Bootsie Edenfield and Miss Julie Whigham have returned to their homes in Bartow after visiting Mr. and Mrs. Homer Simons, Jr.

YOUR PART OF A MILLION DOLLARS

The five to seven hundred workers of the Savannah Sugar Refining Corporation have a payroll of around a million dollars a year, the continuation of which is now threatened by the competition of FOREIGN refined sugar, which has recently invaded Georgia.

This million-dollar payroll is vitally important to Savannah. Anything that materially affects the prosperity of Savannah will likewise hurt the producers of your City and County, as Savannah is one of the principal markets for your products.

In addition to this annual million-dollar payroll to workers in the Savannah Sugar Refinery, another million dollars goes to the American workers who furnish us with goods and services—textile workers, bag-makers, lumbermen, oil workers, railroad employees and truckmen.

In these days of widespread unemployment and high taxes, it is contrary to common sense to increase unemployment in Georgia by transferring good jobs to workers in the tropics. Be sure the sugar you buy is REFINED IN THE U. S. A. If you want to keep the dollars you spend working even closer at home—be sure it's DIXIE CRYSTALS—made in Savannah by Georgia workers.

In our second grade, Section A, we have become very much interested in tree hand drawing. We have drawn a number of pictures of flowers and birds.

The following poems were written by pupils in Grade 3-A:

The Rain
At night I hear the rain:
As it patters on my window pane:
It makes me cool and sleep
When into my bed I creep.

The Kangaroo
When I was sitting on the grass
I saw a kangaroo jumping past;
He has his little ones in his pouch,
And was telling them not to jump out.

Fishing
One day I went fishing by the brook,
I looked down the stream and saw a shad on a stick.
I picked up my pole and went for a stroll
And sat myself down by the old swimming hole.
Soon the fish began to bite
And I held my pole tight;
Then I really caught one,
Which I thought was fun.

Australia
Australia is an island continent, they say,
Though it is far, far away.
The funniest animal is the kangaroo.

New Sinclair H-C has Double-Range Anti-Knock

Take a look at the two speedometers above. They indicate the two important driving ranges where high anti-knock is needed. Some gasolines may give high anti-knock in one speed range but not in the other. However, the new Double-Range Sinclair H-C gives you high anti-knock in both. Ask a Sinclair dealer for Double-Range H-C today. It sells at regular price.

All's Fair...

Well, Jane's eyes were half-closed last week with some sort of allergic disturbance and there was no column because I might have written some half-truths and half-truths are dangerous. However, Jane's eyes are open now and I will do to mention this week. . . . Stunt Night has yielded with a bang to the service play and this year Marian Johnston used approximately sixty boys and girls in a snappy comedy "Sing a Song of Sixteen." Martha Evelyn Hodges, in the leading female role, made a rollicking, vivacious star. She received swell support from Frank Farr, playing the male lead, Frank plucked a few laurels for himself as he sang with depth and ardor. Robert Morris appeared to advantage as an awkward Yankee. An outstanding piece of acting was done by W. R. Lovett as a character actor. A versatile role was that of an ice cream expressman and baritone soloist, played by Albert Key. Charles Brooks McAllister distinguished himself as Prof. Robinson, but appealing to the audience as genuine acting was the portrayal of Uncle Ben by Hulton Allen. Helen Rowse won applause as a deaf woman in quaint costume. Even with our eyes squinted we saw Alfred Merle Dorman make glamour gals out of Willie Dorman, Lillian Lester and Beebie Kennon as she took them to ride in that swanky sport model roadster, her graduation gift from mama and papa.

We are looking forward to the flower show, for there's no doubt that Statesboro women can grow flowers and the soil here seems to be especially adapted to many varieties of flowers. Mrs. Howard Christian was just proud of a Herbert Hoover rose that was set out since she moved into her new home and which produced a rose measuring six inches across. . . . Just squinting around saw Charlie Allen (Mrs. Jimmie) dancing lovely as a

PROTEINS NEEDED TO BUILD TISSUE

HOME AGENT SAYS

Milk, cheese, eggs, meat and fish are the best sources of protein, Home Demonstration Agent Irma Spears said this week, in reminding Bulloch county housewives that plenty of protein foods are needed to build and repair body tissue.

"Milk is considered an excellent source of protein, especially for children who need a good supply during the period of growth," Miss Spears pointed out. "Milk not only contains complete proteins but is also rich in carbohydrates, fats and certain of the needed minerals and vitamins."

"Cheese, eggs and the meat organs are also rich in proteins of high nutritive value," she continued. "Proteins of muscle meats are good, too, but they do not rank as high."

The home demonstration agent said nuts also contain proteins, but nuts are usually considered a source of fat, rather than of protein. Most of the cereals and legume seeds, such as peas and beans, she stated, do not contain all the essential amino acids necessary to make them complete proteins.

"Fortunately, when one food lacks some of the amino acids, another food may be fairly rich in these same amino acids," Miss Spears explained. "When two such incomplete proteins are eaten together, they form a mixture of complete protein. For example, cereals do not contain all the essential amino acids."

"Milk, however, has the kind of protein that is needed to supply what the cereal protein lacks. So, if cereal is served with milk, it becomes a complete protein of good quality."

FARM WOMEN ASSUME COMMUNITY LEADERSHIP

More than a quarter century of work under the home demonstration program has meant aroused initiative among Georgia farm-makers and the development of latent leadership in community co-operation of every type of needed activity.

Home economics in extension dates from the year the college of agriculture received its first state appropriation for extension teaching. Prior to that date, however, the announcement of the first Georgia farmers' conference, in January, 1909, urged all delegates to "bring their wives to this meeting and show their approval of this initial effort to organize the women of the state so that the great power which they exert may become unified and make for serving in the campaign now being waged for the benefit of country life in the true sense of the word."

At the second annual conference in 1910 a longer series of meetings for women were held. In the spring of 1911 two workers in Clarke and Clayton counties were appointed for a two months' period each to organize girls' canning clubs, and in August of the same year the first woman member was appointed on the staff of the state college of agriculture.

Appropriations from county boards of education, county commissioners, fair associations, banks and private citizens for the support of extension work began in 1912, but teachers and women over the state continued to contribute their fine work and co-operation. That year, a letter addressed to teachers in the state asked that they "send us the name of about four public-spirited, progressive ladies of your community who will be willing to form a committee to encourage your club and look after its interests."

These four public-spirited, progressive women of each county in 1912 formed the nucleus for the future home demonstration club.

The passage of the Smith-Lever act in 1914, and its adoption by the state rapidly extended the number of field agents in home economics. At the outbreak of the World War emphasis was placed upon food conservation, but at the close of the war a return to the phases of work that had been suspended brought renewed effort to bear upon home grounds, home furnishings, convenient kitchens, clothing and the economic aspects of home life.

The home demonstration program has continued to include the well-known activities of the rural home. Vitalized in scope and significance by wider and more accurate knowledge, better skill, and more sustained and systematic direction in the community.

The most interesting thing I have noticed among the club women this week is the fact that some of them have become members of the United Georgia Farmers. At each meeting we have had more women feel that we hope that more will decide to become members of this valuable organization.

Maybe you would like to know that the women of Register community have asked for a Home Demonstration club to be organized. We will meet Friday afternoon, May 3, at 4 o'clock in the home of Mrs. O. C. Anderson. All those in the Register district are cordially invited to meet with us.

On Wednesday, May 1, the strong Pulaski softball team defeated the Laboratory school to the tune of 9 to 2. C. Woods was the winning pitcher. Moore was the losing pitcher. C. Woods cracked out two home runs to lead the Pulaski hitting. The highlight of the game was a triple pulled by the Pulaski team. Laboratory school has three more games in the Tri-County league.

The members of the Senior Commerce class, Miss Weaver and Miss Breen, our student teacher, visited the Coca-Cola plant Tuesday morning from 8:30 to 9:25. Mr. Poindexter, the owner, carried us through the plant and showed us each process in cleaning, filling and testing each bottle of Coca-Cola. We enjoyed the visit very much and the cold Coca-Cola he gave us.

JUNIOR-SENIOR BANQUET. The Juniors of the Laboratory High school have planned to entertain the seniors with a banquet at the Jaekel hotel Friday night, May 17.

They will have supper at the hotel and the banquet will be followed by a dance at the College gym. The dance will be a card dance with several break dances in between.

GOURD ENOUGH FOR ANY BIRD. "WON'T YOU come into my gourd," said the martin to the worm.

"It's forty-four inches around—why that's plenty room to squirm." Such might be the words of a martin if he is tenant of a gourd, "apartment house" that R. S. Wolfe, of Baxley, might construct.

Mr. Wolfe, who has already sent the gourd's measurements to the Buxley Gourd club at Monroe, Ga., said it was the biggest gourd he has received in his experience as a gourd collector.

Wolfe, however, is hesitant about building the martin dweller. Such luxury, he says, would spoil the martins. Soon they would be expecting much more. Maybe even a parking lot.

STONES ARE sometimes shaped like a human profile, or a silver dollar, or even a sweet potato. But Henry Owens, of Cartersville, found one that shaped exactly like an egg. And the color and surface gave it the appearance of a petrified egg.

Mr. Owens found that about a stone thrown from the old Cooper iron works. Now the oddity is on display at the Tribune-News office.

LESPEDEZA FERTILIZERS. There is no definite experimental data on the increase in yield of lespedeza per acre in Georgia due to fertilization, but farmers are getting good increases from applications of phosphate and lime. From these results and results obtained in other states where lespedeza has been used for a number of years, it would appear that a practical application would be 300 to 400 pounds of superphosphate or its equivalent in such materials as basic slag or three parts of superphosphate every two or three years and 1,000 to 3,000 pounds of limestone, depending on the acidity of the soil.

GROWING BROILERS. Feed consumption and rate of growth of baby chicks vary widely with different lots of chicks, management methods, kinds of feed and the time of year. Arthur Gannon, extension poultryman, says it generally takes about six and one-half to seven pounds of mash to grow a two-pound fryer. On the average it takes about ten weeks for the growing period, when chicks are fed a good commercial starting or broiler mash containing all the necessary minerals, vitamins, proteins and other nutrients. It often takes much longer with farm-raised chickens in case they are not fed a mash.

EXCHANGE OF COTTON. Commodity Credit corporation has announced that it had accepted proposals from nineteen cotton firms to exchange 25,583 bales of low-grade, short staple, government-owned cotton for high-grade, long staple, privately-owned cotton under the cotton exchange program announced in January. With previous acceptances, the total amount of government-owned cotton to be exchanged under the program now amounts to 186,158 bales.

IMPROVED LAND USE. Since 1932, approximately eight and a half million acres of submarginal lands unsuited to continued cultivation, have been purchased and developed in the United States for uses for which the land is better suited principally forestry and grazing. In dry-land areas this land is being used to help farmers shift more to live stock production and away from the uncertainties of one-crop farming. The land which has been purchased is being turned back to grass and made available to nearby farmers who need more land for this type of farming.

'GOOD-NEIGHBOR POLICY' HELPS SICK FARMER. MUMPS H. Everett Harrison, of Carroll county, down. Down in bed and feeling bad. But there was a heap of plowing to be done. Now when someone is sick, the neighbors usually come around one by one and tell the farmer how sorry they are. But
